THINGS TO DO

"A heritage fort with stories in every corner."

Experiences
rooted in history and calm

About the Property

Tucked away just two hours from Delhi, Seclude Fort Unchagaon is the kind of place where you arrive for a weekend and quickly forget what day it is. This 300-year-old living fort has been brought back to life with its old courtyards, royal rooms, stories and quirks still woven into the experience, alongside 22 heritage rooms, sprawling lawns and plenty to do when you're not simply wandering around. Spend the afternoon exploring the fort, trying your hand at pottery or pickleball, taking a dip, or doing absolutely nothing at all. Come evening, there are bonfires, candlelit dinners and long conversations under the stars. It's heritage without the stiffness, luxury without the fuss, and a little escape from the city that feels much farther away than it actually is.

A photograph of the entrance to Seclude Fort Unchagaon. The entrance is a large, arched stone gateway flanked by two cylindrical bastions. The bastions have horizontal red-painted bands and small circular openings. The central archway is open, revealing a path leading into the fort. A tall flagpole stands on the roof of the central structure. The foreground is a cobblestone path leading towards the entrance, bordered by green hedges and small black posts with chains. The sky is clear blue, and trees are visible in the background.
